

The Cooking Competition

Last month Ben and John entered a cooking competition. It was the first time Ben joined a cooking competition.

Ben wanted to win, so he cooked for his family from Monday to Friday. He read cookbooks in the bookstore every weekends.

In the competition, Ben made soup noodles with seaweed and fish balls. John baked a cake that looked like a mountain. There were twenty people who could vote for the winner. Five of them didn't vote before the time was up. John won because ten people voted for him. Unfortunately, Ben only got five votes. Since John won, he got a gold medal and fifty thousand dollars. Ben felt sad.

In the end, Ben asked John to teach him how to cook better. So next time when he joins a cooking competition, he can have a better chance to win.